

REAL ASSETS:

Adopting a broader view
in infrastructure investing

By 2100, it is expected that 80% of the world's population will be city dwellers.*

Percentage of world population living in cities

How this growth will drive demand for “Next Gen” smart cities and real assets

SOCIAL INFRASTRUCTURE

Clean Energy

Significant global investment in electricity generation needed to support the pressure on infrastructure growth.

Water Supply

Each individual requires two litres of water every day and better social infrastructure needs.

For aging population

Baby boomers are creating an increased infrastructure demand for retirement homes and health care.

Connectivity

An increasingly connected world is creating a push towards better communication infrastructure and 5G.
